JIM.

Jim was a chap who was in hard luck; He was always unfortunate, always stuck. It wasn't his fault he was out of work; He wasn't the sort of a chap to shrink; And there was the summer coming on. While his little savings were almost gone. And these words rang in his ear each day: "No, no, we've nothing that's in your way."

Till the chance of a job looked mighty slim To poor old Jim.

That's how it was when the war broke out.

Jim saw them enlisting all about.

And heard the call of the drum and fife.

Then he kissed his baby, and kissed his wife.

"It's thirteen dollars a month, you know, Little woman," he said, "and I'd better go."

So with the baby she watched one day The gallant regiments march away.

And murmured o'er, while her eyes grew dim:

"God keep you, Jim!"

Down at San Juan when that charge was made

Right into the Spaniards' ambuscade.

In a deadly shower of shot and shell, A soldier—one of the bravest—fell.

Face downward he lay till the Red Cross came,

And they heard him whisper some loved one's name.

"It's no use, boys," with a groan cried he:

"Look after the others, and don't mind me!"

And they said, as they lifted his hat's frayed rim:

"Why, it's poor Jim!"

That's about all, for poor Jim died far from his wife and baby's side.

In Cuba there, and the grasses wave Over a soldier's lonely grave.

And it's just as certain to me as fate, When Jim's soul got to the heavenly gate,

And asked this question, in hope and fear:

"Is there a chance for a future here?"

"Why, yes!" good Peter called out to him:

"Come right in, Jim!"

Lucy's Engagement

YOU don't look very amiable to-night, Mr. Dalton," observed Miss Wyld.

When Miss Wyld first brightened the dull city warehouse with her presence, all observed with joy that the lady's left hand was unadorned with jewelry of any description, and the general jealousy that arose in the matter of paying her attentions must have been highly amusing.

Then she walked through the counting-house one morning, unblushing, and holding her left hand in a manner calculated to display to best advantage an engagement-ring, which glittered and twinkled cheerfully on the correct finger.

Therefore Henry Dalton gazed at it sorrowfully on the evening in question.

"It's quite a quarter of an hour since we met, Mr. Dalton," she remarked, with an amused smile at his troubled face, "yet you've scarcely spoken a word."

Mr. Dalton fidgeted uneasily on the end of his seat, and pulled out his handkerchief. Not being sure what he wanted it for, he put it back in his pocket, and coughed apologetically.

"That's encouraging," she laughed. "At all events, it proves that you have a voice."

"Yes," he admitted limply, with another furtive glance at the offending ring.

"I wish you'd say something," she observed plaintively. "If I'd thought that you were going to be so moody and sulky and disagreeable as this I would never have consented to see you, much less favor you with my company to-night."

"You look upon it as a favor?" hinted Dalton.

"Of course I do," she said. "I know lots of other young fellows who do, too. You ought to feel flattered, instead of moping there like an owl."

"Yes," agreed Dalton absently. "Then why do you do it?" she demanded. "Why don't you say something pleasant?"

Mr. Dalton was silent. He wanted to say something very badly, but the ring kept him back.

"Nice evening, isn't it?" she remarked, with veiled sarcasm, to force the conversation.

"Splendid!" he replied. "How is—er—your mother, Miss Wyld?"

"Very well, thank you," she nodded smilingly. "It's awfully good of you to inquire about her. She and I living together alone don't make many friends. We're quite alone in the world."

"How sad," he commented sympathetically.

She looked at him in surprise. "Do you know, Mr. Dalton, that I'm getting sick of office life?"

"Are you?"

"Yes," she looked him full in the face as she spoke, and colored slightly. "I shan't be sorry when I give it up."

"Are you thinking of giving it up then, Miss Wyld?" he asked.

"I—I don't know exactly. It all depends."

"On him, I suppose," thought Dalton. Then he said, with a nervous laugh: "I hardly see why young ladies should go in for a commercial life at all. If they're pretty, like—er—parson me—you, they're married and out of it before they've time to wear out a pen-nib!"

"Some prefer it to marriage," She laughed.

"Do you?" he questioned eagerly. "I—I don't know," she replied jerkily, poking up the gravel with her sunshade. "I've—er—only tried one side of the question, and I don't like it. As for the other side, I—"

"What?" he interrupted, picking up courage, and edging along the seat towards her.

"Might try it some day," she said presently, by way of rounding off her previous sentence.

"You'll have no difficulty about that," observed Mr. Dalton, with another glance at the ring.

"No," she agreed listlessly. "I suppose my turn will come some day."

Mr. Dalton opened his mouth to ask a question, but shut it promptly as the enormity of his presumption struck him. Then he opened it again determined to know the worst, and hinted:

"Er—I hope he's in a—er—good position, Miss Wyld."

She looked at him quizzically, a faint smile curving the corners of her mouth.

"Yes," she said slowly, "he's in a good position—good enough for me; but he's so awfully dense!"

"Dense!" echoed Mr. Dalton.

"Yes, woefully dense and stupid. I've encouraged him for a long time now, but he's too—er— He won't do as I want him to. I believe if I asked him to he'd run away."

"Some fellows don't know when they're lucky," he observed.

"Well, it's not for me to say whether he's lucky or not," she replied. "I know that I've encouraged him, and he's too dense to see it. Don't you think so, Mr. Dalton?"

"I—er—really I don't know the chap," he confessed, somewhat surprisedly.

She looked at him, with her eyebrows wrinkled perplexedly, and nodded her pretty head.

"Oh, yes, you do," she stated emphatically. "You know him very well indeed."

"Do I?"

"You He is employed—er—" she laughed a little confusedly as she stopped in obvious hesitation; then, lowering her voice, she continued: "in the counting-house with you."

"Oh!" Mr. Dalton's face first expressed blank amazement, then utter disgust. He said something under his breath that Miss Wyld did not hear—something he would have been very sorry for if she had heard.

"What's his name?" he demanded.

She pursed up her lips and shook her head.

"I don't feel at liberty to disclose it at present," she said modestly. "But I must know!" Dalton burst out. "I have a right to—"

He stopped abruptly, and felt utterly disgusted as she burst into a musical peal of laughter.

"Oh, dear," she gasped, "this is killing!"

"It will in the end," said Dalton mournfully, looking at her joyous features, and thinking of his own sad fate. His doleful face only stimulated Miss Wyld's laughter, and her pretty shoulders heaved convulsively.

"I never saw anybody look so sorrowful as you!" she jerked out. "Your face is funny."

"Funny, eh?" he repeated. "You go and play the deuce with a chap's feelings, and then tell him that his face is funny!"

Miss Wyld nodded feebly, and her laughter increased.

"Yes," she said weakly, "your face is funny—awfully funny!"

Dalton watched her for a moment in disgust.

"I shall hate you soon!" he observed vindictively, "if you don't stop that sniggering!"

"You could never do that," she said, rising from her seat, and nodding her pretty head confidently as she stood before him. "A man never hates a pretty girl. He thinks he does—that's all."

Dalton gazed at the ring he hated on the finger he loved, and felt that his case was hopeless.

"When a fellow hints at his affection to a girl," he argued within himself, "and she laughs at him, it's time to chuck up the sponge." Therefore he determined to be nasty.

"You're not at all devoid of self-conceit," he sneered as he rose, too. "Who told you that you were pretty? I didn't."

"No; but lots of other fellows have," she asserted, with a pert nod. "You have, too, in your own way. You haven't told me to my face that you think me pretty; but you've unconsciously hinted the fact in more ways than one."

"Then I emphatically retract all my late hints," he said gruffly.

"Yes," she replied calmly. "it's the way with you men. I suppose you think me anything but pretty now. You can't find a word in your mind wicked enough for application to me, can you?"

She smiled tantalizingly into his face, but Dalton sat down again without a word; and, after regarding him for a moment with an irritating smile, she sat down also.

"When I met you to-night, Mr. Dalton," she said quietly, "I had no idea that we should quarrel. I always thought you a nice fellow, but now I firmly believe that you are nasty tempered."

"And I always thought you'd have more pity for a chap's affections than to laugh at them," he observed.

"Why did you encourage me?"

Something in his voice and manner tickled her again, and she once more indulged in a burst of laughter. "You're nothing more than a heartless flirt!" he burst out angrily. "You, being engaged to another fellow, have deliberately encouraged me to love you, and now you're laughing at me. Hang it all, it's too bad!"

"Too—oo funny, you— Oh, dear me!" she laughed. "You—you're too ridiculous!"

Dalton rose in disgust, and stood looking down on her wrathfully.

"I'll leave you to finish your laughter in solitude," he remarked, with angry sarcasm. "And—I'm hanged if I don't find out the chap that you are engaged to, and get him the sack!"

This awful threat appeared to have the very opposite result to what Mr. Dalton anticipated, for she laughed more than ever, nodding her head feebly. Dalton stood for a moment in angry indecision, and seized her left hand.

"Who put that ring on there?" he demanded. "I'm going to know before we part to-night!"

Miss Wyld struggled with her mirth for a while, and became suddenly serious.

"If you'll promise not to fulfill your threat of getting the person dismissed, I'll tell you."

"I promise. I didn't mean it," he pleaded anxiously. "I wouldn't play you such a trick!"

"Then," she said slowly, "the person who put that ring on my finger was—"

"Yes," he queried eagerly, as she paused, and seemed on the point of laughing again.

"My—oh, dear—myself!" she gasped.

"You put that on yourself?" he repeated. "Why?"

It was some time before she was able to speak at all coherently, and Dalton waited impatiently.

"Come, tell me why you engaged yourself to marry yourself?" he demanded eagerly.

"I will if you will go away to your own end of the seat, and promise not to move," she replied.

Dalton, in some astonishment, slid back along the seat, and Miss Wyld watched him roguishly.

"When I first took up my present employment," she said, "there were such a nice lot of fellows in the counting-house that I didn't know which I liked best. I tried them all for a little while, and managed to make them all so fond of me that I could see I was going to get into hot water. I liked one better than all the rest, but he was so dense and bashful that I began to be afraid that I should receive the proposals of all the rest before his, and—and I didn't want them. So, to make a long story short, I put on my mother's engagement-ring, to keep them at their proper distance. I knew the one I liked best was safe enough, and that I could draw him out whenever I wished; but I couldn't resist the temptation of teasing him—er—to-night!"

"To-night!" echoed Dalton. "Do you—?" Then he paused undecidedly.

"Now say that you are not dense and stupid!" she said. Then she stamped her dainty foot, looked at him severely, and concluded: "And I don't believe you care for me at all!"

Dalton edged cautiously along the seat towards her, and as it was nearly dark, he ventured to put his arm round her slim waist.

"Haven't you been rather rough on me—er—Lucy?" he inquired plaintively.

"You don't mind now, do you, Harry?" she replied with a bright smile. "I—"

What she was going to say further was lost in Dalton's moustache.—London Answers.

Criminals' Grim Jest.
The callousness and even grim humor of condemned criminals is well exemplified by the following stories: On walking to the scaffold in solemn procession a criminal once called to the governor of the prison, "Just oblige me, Gov'nor," he said, "by telling me the day o' the week?"

"Monday," answered the surprised governor. "Monday!" exclaimed the prisoner in disgusted tones; "Well, this 'ere's a fine way of beginning a week, ain't it?" And he marched on with disgust imprinted on every line in his face.

On another occasion an officious hangman whispered as he placed the white cap on his victim's head: "If there's anything you'd like to hear me I'll be pleased to answer, yer know." The victim craned his neck forward, and said in an equally low voice, "You might tell me, is—is this planking safe?"—London Globe.

Prudery in Extremis.
We have all heard of the American ladies whose sense of modesty was such that they clothed the legs of their tables and chairs in nether garments. The following occurrence at one of the great London hospitals is illustrative of feeling every whit as nice. A cold-storage chamber was being constructed in connection with the post-mortem room and the secretary of the hospital, on going to see how the work was getting on, found that the chamber was being fitted with double doors—and those of small size—instead of one large door. He made inquiries as to the deviation from the original plan, when the chief carpenter, who was superintending the work, replied: "Oh, sir, we are putting in double doors and a wooden partition in order to keep the sexes apart!"—London Lancet.

PUBLIC SCHOOL EXERCISES.

Some Stirring Samples of Sapientry from the Well-Informed and Eager Pupils.

The bell brings another silence. Mary gathers a new set of impedimenta and seeks the place assigned. While she corrects exercises she keeps an alert eye on the studying of the 50 over whom she presides, says World's Work.

The exercises are not wholly cheering.

"Aphoribilty," she reads, "is the state of being an aphoribilty."

"Aphoribilty is the state of being insane on one subject only."

"Serenade, a greenness as of grass."

"Reverberation, is when it is made again into a verb."

"The equator is a menagerie lion running between the north and south pole."

"They climbed Vesuvius to see the creator smoking."

"We celebrate the Fourth of July because Jesus bids us."

"Vengeance, Def'n, a mean desire to pay back. Illus'n, 'Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord.'"

"Ingenious, a stupid person, from in, not, and ingenious, a smart person."

"Discretion, a difference of sex between animals."

"The early Briton wore a skin; he tied it at the waist. He wore legions on his legs. He had eyes of a blue shade which plainly showed his semi-civilization. He wore on his feet moccasins or sandals."

The blue pencil poised itself. "My heart will cease to propitiate when I die" is plainly palpitate, but why serenade and—discretion?

Some of the most unaccountable and freakish mistakes she copies in a little book to make merry the heart of an invalid at home. Before them on the same page are:

"Grand opera. The only Grand Opera I know is Wang."

"The Te Deum is a Grand opera."

"The British museum is the principal building in Paris."

"Aristides was a god; he was the female god of Phoenicia."

"Hannibal was an early Greek explorer who wrote a book called Heroditus."

"Virgil was a Vestal Virgin."

"As I roamed in the deep woods I saw a herd of greyhounds hunting for prey."

"Julius Caesar was the mother of the Gracchi."

BITS OF FEMININITY.

Pretty Trifles in Dress That Are Now in Favor with the Fashionables.

Narrow panels at the front of the skirt are new.

Lace in a genuine coffee color is used most effectively on white organdies, says the Detroit Free Press.

Shirt-waist gowns of foulard bid fair to be appealingly popular and already embroidered yokes of bands on the front of the waist are being introduced in order to give some relief to the rather too plain effect.

Conspicuous belts are creeping into favor. A navy blue and white foulard is made chic by a belt of red and white dotted foulard, and the hat is trimmed to match.

White and colored taffeta coats are newer than the black, and there is something especially smart and attractive in the white ones to wear over white and light gowns.

An exceedingly elegant costume is made with a box-plaited skirt, that hangs from a hip yoke of the lace, and a blouse, also box plaited, that includes yoke and cuffs of the Cluny.

The linen batistes are made into very smart little gowns for midsummer wear. They are trimmed with lace in points, medallions and insertions, and give a touch of becoming color at the throat and belt. Tucked blouses fastened at the left.

Daintily flowered borders distinguish many of the new summer dress fabrics in velveting, taffeta, French muslin, plain satin foulard, batiste, challi and etamine crystalline.

Very picturesque are the evening gown sleeves, some of which are merely deep plaitings of lace or chiffon, hanging from the shoulders to the elbows and open on the top of the arm. This sort of sleeve necessitates long gloves.

Her Shrimp Salad.

A very young and very inexperienced matron—a well-known society woman of this borough—recently undertook to assume the entire management, even to the smallest detail, of her household affairs, and her directions to the servants are conveyed to them in writing. A few days ago, wishing to have some dainty dish for luncheon, she thought a nice shrimp salad would be the thing, and accordingly wrote her instructions to the cook to prepare the salad and for the purpose to order from the marketman "one small shrimp."

The story leaked out, and it will be many days before she will be able to look into the eyes of any of her friends without seeing the small shrimp twinkling therein.—N. Y. Times.

Frightened Off.

"So Ethel delivered her essay at the graduation exercises for over half an hour. Jack, who was in the audience, must have felt proud of her."

"Not at all. He shuddered at the possibility of being married to such a talker and immediately broke off the engagement."—Baltimore Herald.

Had His Good Points.

"Madge, why do you drag that stupid De Smith with you everywhere you go?"

"Madge—Well, Cholly is stupid, to be sure, dear, but he always wears his clothes to match my dress."—Stray Stories.

No Noxious Doses. No Weakening of the Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Habit.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkenness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home—without publicity or loss of time from business—by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE," which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have outed themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluged by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effective than the others costing $35 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. H 612 EDWIN B. GILES & CO., 2930 and 2932 Market Street, Philadelphia.

Travelers to California
Naturally desire to see the grandest and most impressive scenery on earth. This you will do by selecting the Denver & Rio Grande and Rio Grande Western. "The Scenic Line of the World," in one or both directions, as this line has two separate routes across the Rocky Mountains between Denver and Ogden. Tickets reading via this route are available either via its main line through the Royal Gorge, Leadville, over Tennessee Pass, through the Canon of the Grand River and Glenwood Springs or via the line over Marshall Pass and through the Black Canon of the Gunnison, thus enabling the traveler to use one of the above routes going and the other returning. Three splendidly equipped fast trains are operated to and from the Pacific Coast, which carry through standard sleepers daily between Chicago, St. Louis, Denver and San Francisco. Dining car (service a la carte) on all through trains. If you contemplate such a trip, let us send you beautifully illustrated pamphlets, free. S. K. Hooper, G. P. & T. A., Denver, Col. (18mart)

The Buttermilk Cow.

Grandma had taken little Roger to the country for a visit over night. After all the wonderful visits to the barnyard and pig sty, milking time came. Roger, cup in hand, went to see the cows milked.

When he was drinking his cup of milk he looked at all the cows and then asked:

"Grandma, which cow is the buttermilk cow?"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Why the Case Was Hopeless.

The dog greeted the customer with an ear-splitting bark of defiance, and kept up the disturbing racket until finally the tobaccoist's wife came to the front of the store and mildly asked her husband if he could not somehow manage to quiet the excited canine.

"No," blandly replied the philosophic man, "it is utterly impossible, you know it is a female dog."—N. Y. Times.

Great Head for Business.

Sister—Oh, Bob, that Dr. Scrimp is a mean little fellow.

Brother—What's up with him?

Sister—You know he attended me when I was ill. Well, he began to call regularly after that for another reason—till at last he proposed and I rejected him. And now he has charged all those love-sick calls as professional visits.—Tit-Bits.

Charlie's Weather Observation.

It was thundering very loud one day when little Charlie Horner, aged four years, said:

"Mamma, God must be scrubbing today."

"What makes you think so, Charlie?" asked his mother.

"Why," said Charlie, "don't you hear him moving the tables around?"—Ethel Horner, in Little Chronicle.

The Boy Guessed Right.

"Do as I tell you," Tommy's mamma cried. "It's about time you realized the futility of struggling against the inevitable. Do you know what that means?"

"Yes'm," replied Tommy, "it means there's no use of your washin' my hands an' face 'cause they'll only get dirty again."—Philadelphia Press.

Progressive Eucure.

Sybil—Is that Harry Scribbler's writing, Kitty?

Kitty—Yes. I'm engaged to him, you know.

Sybil—Of course. I was engaged to him last summer.

Kitty—The dear boy! I wonder who he'll eventually marry?—Pearson's Weekly.

Unanswered.

"Here's a problem for you. If it takes nine tailors to make a man—"

"The average fellow's only a ninth of a man, eh?"

"No; I was going to add: 'How many tailor-made gowns will it take to break him?'—Catholic Standard and Times.

Those Learned Graduation Essays.

"Each spring when I listen to the learned graduation essays of a class of wealthy men's sons at a college commencement I feel that I won't be able to hold my job two weeks after those smart youths get out hustling for their daily bread in competition with me," mused the gloomy-eyed middle-aged man in the back seat. "But on my way home, as I learn that the trolley-car conductor is a college graduate, and that the clerk at the corner cigar store is another, I begin to chirp up a bit, and in a day or two I get over my dismal forebodings!"—Puck.

Cruel.

"How long," asked the youth, "ought a young man to be acquainted with a girl, Miss Flyppe, before he may venture to call her by her first name?"

"How long have you known me?" she asked in turn.

"About six months."

"Well, if he's the right young man that's a long enough time."

"Then, Susie—"

"But you're not the right young man, Mr. Spoonamore."—Chicago Tribune.

Mrs. Doyle—Neither is mine; he has always kicked because he couldn't find his collar button, and now he has a wart on the back of his neck, but he isn't satisfied with that.—N. Y. Times.

Good Book to Own.

Agent—Here, sir, is a book that should be in every family. It contains a receipt for everything, sir—everything.

Cholly—Give me three copies. If it has a receipt for my tailor's bill I'll take five.—Tit-Bits.

Dealing in Futures.

Bess—Is it true that young Sinkins offered himself to you last night?

Nell—He did.

Bess—And did you accept him?

Nell—Well, not exactly—but I have an option on him for ten days.—Chicago Daily News.

What Johnny Thought.

"What does Gabriel Grubb mean, auntie?"

"Gabriel Grubb is a character in one of Dickens' Christmas Stories."

"O, I thought maybe it was another name for angel food cake."—Chicago American.

Hard Luck.

Hewitt—It's sad about Gruet losing his leg in that railroad accident.

Jewett—Yes; it must be a great disappointment to him; he was always talking about "getting there with both feet."—Brooklyn Life.

Counting Them.

"Mr. Woodby Witte says that there are only eight jokes in the world."

"I should never have suspected from his efforts to amuse," answered Miss Cayenne, languidly, "that he had found so many."—Washington Star.

Sent of the Trouble.

"I'm entirely worn-out, doctor," said the barber, who had called at the office of the physician.

"Let me see your tongue," said the doctor, who never shaved himself.—Yonkers Statesman.

NEW COAST DEFENS.

Searchlights to Be Installed as a Means of Protecting Harbors from Attack.

Gen. Gillespie, chief of engineers of the army, has made preparations for carrying on extensive experiments with searchlights, which are to be a part of the defenses of the harbors along our coast. The fortifications of last year appropriated $150,000 for the purchase and installation of the lights in the defenses of New York harbor, and the work is well advanced. It is now deemed essential to install the same system at Portland, Me., Boston, the eastern entrance to New York, and Puget sound, and it is hoped that congress will this year appropriate $300,000 for the purpose. It is planned to use the target and most effective searchlights, those having a range of 2,500 yards.

The English and French have already used them in their maneuvers with satisfactory results, although the machinery of offensive and defensive warfare the value is somewhat undetermined. It is proposed this year, in our maneuvers at Narragansett bay, to multiply the searchlights in such a way as to determine definitely whether the main channels in the four harbors named can be lighted up.

URNS BACK ON SOCIETY.

Mrs. Harry P. Robinson, Daughter of Street Car Magnate, to Become a Nurse.

Mrs. Harry P. Robinson, daughter of the multi-millionaire street car magnate, Thomas Lowry, has started her friends in Minneapolis by giving up her position in society to become a professional nurse. She is the wife of Harry P. Robinson, of Chicago, proprietor of the Railway Age.

A week ago she entered the Northwestern hospital as a nurse on probation. She was assigned to night duty in one of the wards. One of the fashionable dressmakers of the city has made six handsome uniforms for her. Although the style and pattern are of the regulation model, the material is the richest and the caps and aprons are of sheer linen and lawn.

When asked her reasons for giving up a life of luxury for that of a nurse Mrs. Robinson said:

"Reasons? Oh, there are none. I simply love the work, that is all."

Harry P. Robinson is at present in London, where he is engaged in literary pursuits and in the publishing business, still retaining his interest in the Railway Age. He left Chicago over a year ago.

HENS SET WITH NO RESULTS.

Dynamite Blasts in Rock Falls, Ill., Destroy the Vital Spark in...

Blasting in the bed of the Hennepin canal, in Rock Falls, Ill., is causing the hens of that town to set long without results. Poultry breeders declare that the explosions destroy the vital sparks in eggs, and no chicks have been hatched near the canal in that town since the blasting began, three weeks ago.

Rock Falls takes special pride in its fancy chickens, many of the leading citizens belonging to the Arena Poultry association, and the dispositions of the association members have been almost as badly jarred as the eggs. At times 200 pounds of dynamite are exploded in the canal, but the effect of the explosion is more noticeable across Rock river, in Sterling, than in Rock Falls, rattling down dishes from shelves and breaking window panes, while the Rock Falls troubles are confined to the eggs.

MODERN CATECHISM.

In Which We Find Enlightenment Regarding the Purpose of the Whizz-Wagon.

"What was that just whizzed past us?" asked one pedestrian of another, according to the Ohio State Journal.

"That was an automobile."

"And what is an automobile?"

"It is something which has been invented to increase the mortality rate."

"It has been successful in doing this?"

"Yes, indeed; it has surpassed the fondest expectations."

"What would have happened if we had not got out of the way of the automobile?"

"Two funerals."

"Who is the man who is running the automobile?"

"He is called a chauffeur."

"Is that the only name he has?"

"No, people often call him many other names."

"What would he do if he were to run over some one?"

"He would smile."

"Would he stop?"

"I should say not."

"What would the police do?"

"They would arrest him."

"What then?"

"He would be fined and discharged."

"That would reform him, would it not?"

"No; he doesn't mind being fined, because he has lots of money."

"How fast is that automobile going?"

"About 50 miles an hour."

"Is not that very fast?"

"Not for an automobile."

An Old-Time Terror.

Among ancient relics at present on exhibition at Chicago, is a sheet of papyrus bearing a complaint to a chief of police who held office just 2,000 years ago, that the premises of the writer had been robbed. Whether the work was done by a porch climber, a duplicate key man, or an ordinary hall sneak is not recorded, but the antique document is suggestive that in some ways a score of centuries has not greatly changed the world. One can imagine that old-time chief threatening his dusky Egyptian force with the terrors of a "shake-up."—Buffalo Courier.

What About Your School Houses?

You may not this season be able to build a new one, or make the radical changes in the old one that you had in contemplation, but there is no school district in the United States that cannot afford to tint with Alabastine the interior of their buildings, thus making them more attractive, getting colors made with special reference to their effects on the eyes of the pupils, getting a sanitary and rock base cement coating that will not harbor disease germs.

The closely crowded school rooms need all the safeguards to the health of the pupil that intelligent officials can surround them with, and all sanitarians unite in saying that Alabastine is the only proper material to be used on such walls.

When Brains Are Needed.

It is told of a learned professor who was better at Greek than golf that after a round on the links, in which he had fiddled most of his shot, he turned to his caddy for advice as to improving his play. The reply of the ruthless caddy was: "Ye see, sir, it's easy to teach laddies Latin and Greek, but it needs a head for golf."—London News.

DURING SUMMER MONTHS

Dr. Hartman Gives Free Advice to Suffering Women.

MISS LIZZIE SNEATHING

Dr. Hartman, the Famous Gynecologist and Inventor of Peruna Offers to Treat Women Free During the Summer Months.

MRS. ALEX. JOHNSON

America is the land of nervous women. The great majority of nervous women are so because they are suffering from some form of female disease. By far the greatest number of female troubles are caused by catarrh.

Women afflicted with pelvic catarrh despair of recovery. Female trouble is so common, so prevalent, that they accept it as almost inevitable. The greatest obstacle in the way of recovery is that they do not understand that it is catarrh which is the source of their illness. In female complaint, are nothing but catarrh and catarrh catarrh wherever located.

The following letter was recently received:

160 W. 38th st., New York City.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O. Gentlemen—"What bread and meat means to the hungry Peruna means to the sick. It is an especially valuable medicine for sick women. I have found that no medicine so quickly restores health and places the body in a normal condition. I but voice the sentiments of women who were once sick, but are now in perfect health."

MISS LIZZIE SNEATHING.

All women who are in doubt as to what their trouble is should write Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio. Give him a full description of your trouble, previous treatment, symptoms and age. He will promptly reply with full directions for treatment free of charge.

This is an opportunity which no ailing woman should miss. Dr. Hartman has become renowned through his success in treating women's diseases. His experience in these matters is vast. Correspondence is strictly confidential.

No testimonials published without written consent. Dr. Hartman relies principally upon Peruna in these cases.

REPORTS say the engineer arrested at Paris last week, was charged with "assault with intent to kill with a deadly weapon; to-wit, a railroad engine." The law ought to prohibit the carrying of railroad engines, and require officers to search every suspicious character to see if he has an engine concealed about his person. The carrying of such things is a wrong.—Lancaster Record.

HARD ON AGENTS.

[From the Farmer's Friend.]

The fact that nearly every company doing business in the State is enveloped in the law suit with Bourbon County over the Court House fire makes it hard on the agents. The Hurst Home has always been a sore eye to the boys in Paris, and when it first started, they said it would never pay; and finding that did no good, now the boys yell "mortgage." In other words, at first the Hurst Home was no good and now it is too good because it writes a valued policy and is secured by millions of realty.

Things were getting pretty blue on the boys last fall when the row over the Fraternity was raised and they naturally took the advantage of the misfortune and said "better now" (poor souls) and just as they were making a fresh start and were well in the saddle, here came the Court House law suit, and their own bronco began to buck with them. Now with the Hurst Home in front again and they, with troubles of their own, the boys are kept very busy.

Sometimes in their rush and excitement, they get off a letter and make statements they can't prove about Co-operative insurance.

Of course, while they are in trouble, we will excuse much, even if they occasionally stampede a good member from Co-operative company, because now that Co-operative insurance is prosperous, it can well afford to be lenient.

But right here, boys, we suggest that it would be well for you to exercise some little care, as too much might be a big cheap. We have recently come into possession of some statements made by some Paris agents down behind the livery stable in a corner, that if put into cold print and proof called for, would look bad.

We are proud to know that most of the boys are wading through as best they can and are not trying to defend their business by making Scripture, but some are growing desperate, and it is this class we warn. Now boys, be good and take your medicine, just like Millersburg people took theirs last fall, and tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

No matter which way you turn the scales, Co-operative insurance is the cheapest and best, and dark hints and insinuations, with no facts or props will only react on you if you deal with such stuff.

Generally it is safest not to talk about men or their business unless you understand what you say.

You have to meet the people of Bourbon county with these facts.

1. Paris Court House was worth $100,000 and insured for half its value, and the insurance paid for years and premiums renewed by the companies you represent, and now they offer $80,000 for the $50,000 loss.

2. The Co-operative companies never offer to make such settlements, and the Hurst Home has for eleven years stood in your midst, proclaiming against such settlement and at all times settling according to face of policy. Every total loss has been paid in full and no contention or dispute, and her policy requires such a settlement.

Again this company is under the management of a board of directors, many of whom are the best business men of Bourbon county.

Better the easy boys and stick close to facts.

for the season of 1902. A surprising variety of styles, at prices surprisingly low. Your decision will please you—if the garment be selected from this line.

It is not necessary to be frozen stiff in order to keep cool. Just do as a sensible man should do. Don't over-exercise, avoid all excitement, keep sweet, dress to suit the weather and defy the weather clerk. Drink plenty of cool water—not ice cold—and wear one of our SUMMER SUITS. Eat very little meat, but wear our Straw Fedora Hat. Bathe the body frequently and wear our Negligee Shirts. Do this and you will be

COMFORTABLE AND HAPPY.

Just test this prescription and you will feel under great obligations to us.

JULY FORECASTS.—Hicks, the weather man tells us that from the 4th to the 7th a warm wave of great intensity may be looked for, with some wicked storms of thunder and hail. Change to quite cool for the season may be expected on the heels of this disturbance. Reactionary storms will develop on and touching the 10th and 13th. Excessively warm weather will exist prior to the storm culminations at this time.

MISS HUDSON'S RECITAL.—From the notices in the different Chicago papers, we predict that the vocal recital given by Miss Blanche Hudson, at the Methodist Church to-night, will be one of the most entertaining events of the season in Paris. She has a splendid voice. It is a contralto, wonderfully rich, pure and powerful, and all who attend the recital will be amply repaid. Miss Hudson is formerly of Paris, long noted for its music-loving people, and the number of good voices that have hailed from it, and will no doubt turn out in large numbers to hear her on her return to her native hearth.

Council Fixes Tax Rate.

The City Council has fixed the tax levy for 1902 at seventy-five cents for general purposes, thirty cents for school purposes and twenty cents for sinking fund; total $1.25. This is an increase of twenty-five cents over 1901, the increase being made necessary by the cutting out of the city limits of the Paris Distilling Company and other real estate, and by the contract for all-night street lighting. An ordinance was also passed prohibiting the operation of poolrooms for betting on races, and inflicting heavy fines for each day the rooms operate.

Circuit Court.

On Saturday, O'Brien & James were fined $500, on the charge of suffering a nuisance on premises.

On yesterday, Commonwealth vs. Desha Lucas, suffering raming, $300. Commonwealth vs. Smith O'Brien, assisting in conducting pool room, $75. Commonwealth vs. Douglas Armstrong, same, $5.

The jury cases having been disposed of the juries have been dismissed from further service in this court.

Presentation of Medal.

Last night, at the Odd Fellows' lodge, Mr. Jas. T. Davis was presented with a solid gold medal, inscribed with diamonds, for continuous service as treasurer of the lodge for fifty years, his half century expiring at that time. The medal is a handsome solid gold one, with a scroll at the top with "I. O. O. F." Beneath is a globe, showing the two countries, North and South America, with the word "Universal." On top of the globe is the figure "50," which are studded with fifty small diamonds, representing fifty years, and below, the three links, representing the emblem of the order.

There is only one other medal like it in Kentucky, which was presented to Geo. W. Venable, as Grand Chaplain of the Sovereign Grand Lodge of the World. Mr. Davis, therefore, is honored, and the honor was well bestowed.

He is a charter member of Bourbon Lodge, organized in November, 1845, and is now the only charter member left, as the rest have all passed beyond.

Bourbon Lodge is in possession of the original receipt given by Mr. Davis the night of the institution of the lodge on Nov. 25, 1845, and his receipts for every night since.

The presentation speech was made by D. D. G. M., E. B. January.

THE SERVANT GIRL QUESTION

Is easily solved when you provide your kitchen with a Gas Range during the heated term. If she "lives" you and you are obliged to do your own cooking, you will hardly blame her, when you have to suffer the discomforts of a coal fire during the Summer months. Gas is clean, economical and comfortable, and you don't need your fire only while you actually use it.

TO BE GIVEN LIBERTY.

An Amnesty Proclamation to Filipinos Will Be Issued.

They Shall Be Allowed to Participate in the Civil Government Which Is to Be Inaugurated on the Islands.

Washington, June 28.—At the meeting of the cabinet the terms of an amnesty proclamation to the Filipinos, which it is contemplated to issue on the 4th of July, were agreed upon. The war department for some time past has had under consideration the draft of a proclamation, and has found it necessary to make a number of changes in its text. In its modified state it was agreed to by the cabinet, and Secretary Root will cable it to Acting Gov. Wright for his inspection. If it meets the latter's approval, nothing will remain but for the president, if the Philippine civil government bill is a law on that day, as is now expected it will be, to issue on Independence day a formal proclamation, setting forth terms of amnesty for all political offenders in the islands, including Aguinaldo and those held at Guam.

The proclamation is based on the general objects of the Philippine government bill, namely, to restore peace in the archipelago and substitute a civil for a military administration. That bill is now in conference, and the proclamation will not be issued until the Philippine government measure has been agreed upon by both houses and the president has affixed his signature to it. The proclamation will declare that a state of peace now exists in the Philippine islands, save in the parts of the archipelago where the Mindanao or pagan tribes are giving the United States a great amount of trouble, and will declare in effect, that with the transfer of the government of the archipelago from a military to a civil status all those arrested and held for political offenses shall be restored to liberty, granted full amnesty, and allowed to participate in the civil government which is to be inaugurated on the islands.

While the proclamation is subject to changes in text, the general language of the document is pretty well mapped out. There was a general discussion of the agreement that should be accorded to political prisoners in the islands. There is no intention, it is stated, to release those prisoners convicted of other than political offenses, the benefits of the amnesty being limited to those in custody as a result of breaches of military law, leaving criminal offenders to the action of the proper authorities under the coming civil government. The purpose is to demonstrate that motives of humanity and generosity dictate our course toward the Filipinos. When the islands are turned over to the civil authorities they will not be left without adequate military protection, as no more troops will be ordered home for the present, and every precaution will be taken for the military safeguarding of the islands under the new civil administration.

Another subject under consideration at the cabinet meeting Friday was the negotiation for the purchase of the friars' lands in the Philippines. Secretary Root took with him to the meeting all the correspondence which has passed between himself and Gov. William Taft, while the latter has been carrying on his negotiations at Rome. It is understood that Secretary Root feels great confidence in a successful outcome of Gov. Taft's efforts.

The cabinet also took up the question of naming the naval vessels provided for in the naval appropriation bill, and, it is stated, a decision was reached in that case, but it is desired not to make the names public until the vessels are actually authorized.

PICKLES AND PRESERVES.

The Large Manufacturers Throughout the United States to Combine.

Camden, N. J., June 28.—Articles of incorporation were filed Friday by the Association of Manufacturers and Distributors of Food Products, with no capital. The capital of the firms in the corporation is $30,000,000. The incorporation Friday is said to be preliminary to the organization of a combination to embrace a number of the largest pickling and preserve companies throughout the United States. A meeting of representatives of these companies will be held in New York on July 29.

Voluntary Increase in Wages.
Pittsburg, June 28.—The largest voluntary increase ever known in the wages of 100,000 men, has been decided upon by the United States steel corporation. They will receive an advance of ten per cent., which will increase the annual pay roll of the corporation by $4,000,000.

Portuguese Troops Gain a Victory.
Lisbon, June 28.—It has officially been announced that Portuguese troops have gained a decisive victory over the rebels in the upper Zambes region of Portuguese East Africa. The rebellious chiefs were captured and decapitated.

Robert Mantell's Bargain.
New York, June 28.—Robert B. Mantell, the actor, has just paid $6,000 for the privilege of resigning from the Alimony club, and Friday he basked in the week day sun of Broadway for the first time in a decade.

OUT OF IMMEDIATE DANGER.

King Edward's Condition Is Entirely Satisfactory to His Physicians.

London, June 30.—Saturday night passed with less incident at Buckingham palace than any other night since the operation was performed on King Edward. There were fewer watchers outside the palace, the public apparently having accepted the official announcement that the king has passed the point of immediate danger. The following bulletin was issued at 9 o'clock Sunday morning:

"The king feels stronger in spite of some discomfort from the wound. Nothing has occurred to disturb the satisfactory progress the king is making."

This bulletin was not issued until 10 o'clock, consequently the few persons who were passing in the neighborhood of the palace were the only ones attracted to the announcement. When the footmen had posted the notice, however, the crowds soon increased, early church goers stopping to read the latest news and passing on with expressions of thankfulness.

A bulletin posted at the palace at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon said, the king's progress was in every way satisfactory and that the local discomfort had decreased.

King Edward's physicians announced at 9:45 o'clock that the royal patient's progress was entirely satisfactory. No further bulletins were issued Sunday night.

London, June 30.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Copenhagen says that Queen Alexandra has invited the deputies of Danish hussars to return to London at the end of September for the coronation of the king.

IN MERCER COUNTY.

The Loss on Account of the Storm Will Reach Into Thousands.

Burgin, Ky., June 30.—A terrific storm swept through this region, leaving devastation in its wake. A regular waterspout accompanied the wind. Telephone poles were twisted off at the ground, and grain fields swept clean of all sheaves.

Robinson Row, a small village, was almost wholly demolished, several houses having been carried clear away, while others were lifted from their foundations, and the occupants of many being injured considerably.

Dr. E. G. Guttry, of this place, who was making a professional call there, was caught in the whirl, his buggy being swept away and demolished, while he was severely bruised. Curd's stock barn was carried away and several head of mules killed.

Lambert's residence just outside of the corporation limits was demolished, and he was badly injured. The damages will run up into the thousands.

A TRAIN DERAILED.

Two Men Killed on the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad.

St. Louis, June 30.—A section of passenger train No. 5 on the St. Louis & San Francisco railroad which left here 9:30 o'clock Sunday evening for Texas points, was derailed at Minckie, a few miles west of this city, and two laboring men who were beating their way home to Streetville, Mo., on the blind baggage were killed. At the point where the wreck occurred an immense boulder fell onto the track, spreading the rails and bounding off. When the train came along soon after the engine, one postal car, two baggage cars and one coach were derailed, the forward car being overturned. Five Pullman sleepers and drawing room cars kept the track and nobody was injured.

MURDERED BY MEXICANS.

The Murderers Were Themselves Killed By Pursuing Officers.

Hillsboro, Tex., June 30.—It is reported from Cos, Senora, Mex., that Henry Ward and his wife, who formerly lived near Branden, Tex., have been murdered by two Mexican employees who themselves were killed by pursuing officers. Mr. Ward was a wealthy cattleman and had just sold a large herd.

The murderers made their escape, but the officers overtook them near Chuchuta, where, in a running fight, they were killed. None of the pursuing officers were hurt.

STRUCK A BROKEN RAIL.

One Passenger Was Killed and Thirty More or Less Injured.

Colorado Springs, Col., June 30.—An excursion train on the Colorado Midland railway coming down Ute Pass from Cripple Creek Sunday struck a broken rail and seven cars were wrecked. Francis M. English, a prominent musician of this city, was instantly killed and 30 other passengers were more or less injured, three or four of them probably fatally.

Leaped From a Third-Story Window.
Covington, Ky., June 30.—Crazed with pain, superinduced by a severe case of pneumonia and other ailments, Harry Sudbeck, 32, leaped to death from the third-story window at St. Elizabeth's hospital early Sunday morning. His body was found in a pool of blood shortly after 4 o'clock by one of the attendants and carried into the institution, where a physician made an examination, but life was extinct.

Isthmian Canal Bill Signed.
Washington, June 30.—President Roosevelt Saturday night signed the Isthmian canal bill.

FIGHTING IN HAYTI.

Engagements Between Men From the Fleet and Revolutionists.

Foreign Consuls, Under Protection of Their Various Flags, Are With Gen. Firmin, and Are About to Embark.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 30.—There was much fighting here Sunday and great excitement prevails. Adm. Killik, commander of the Haytien fleet, disembarked a further detachment of troops and a large quantity of ammunition at 4 o'clock Sunday morning for the better protection of Gen. Firmin, one of the candidates for the presidency of the republic.

Since 6 o'clock Sunday morning there have been several lively engagements between the men from the fleet and the revolutionists from the north. Several machine guns were set up in a commanding position by Gen. Firmin's forces, and an attempt was made to drive the men from the north from their positions. Notwithstanding the fire from the machine guns, detachments of the northern revolutionists made several attacks on Gen. Firmin's followers and the latter were eventually dislodged.

In the meantime the vessels under the command of Adm. Killik were bombarding Cape Haytien. This action was taken without previous notification to the foreign consuls here. There has been a lively rain of shots down the streets of Cape Haytien.

At the moment of filing this dispatch the foreign consuls under the protection of the various flags are with Gen. Firmin and are about to embark on the government gunboat Ore to Piro. They are under a rather heavy fire and in considerable danger. The foreign residents of this port are at present exposed to the lawlessness and savagery of the combatants.

Deep regret is expressed that no warship of a foreign power is in the harbor to afford protection to foreign residents.

Great excitement reigned here Sunday afternoon.

ATHLETICS AND RELIGION.

Representatives of Creeds Is Planned For the Olympian Games.

Chicago, June 30.—A gathering of representatives of the many religions and creeds of the world, which will rival the congress of religions of the World's fair, is planned for the Olympian games in 1904, by Bishop Faelows, chairman of the committee on ethical and religious organizations. The religious feature of the games will be organized on the same broad lines as the games themselves have been planned.

Every country that is invited to send its athletic representatives will be urged to have its religions represented as well. Following the idea that all games of endurance and skill had their origin in religious worship in ancient times, this committee will endeavor to show that the connection has not been lost in later years. It is held that the temperance and self-denial exacted of candidates for modern sports of all kinds is closely allied to the principles of self-control which are taught as part of every creed in civilized land, and that athletics and religious work together toward forming a race of perfect human beings.

TABLET OF WHITE MARBLE.

A Tribute to the Late President Unveiled in a Washington Church.

Washington, June 30.—A small tablet of white marble, bearing in letters of gold a brief statement of the life and deeds of William McKinley, the tribute of his friend, Judge Thomas H. Anderson, formerly of Ohio, but now a member of the district bench, was unveiled in the Metropolitan M. E. church here Sunday. The unveiling was attended with simple ceremonies in the presence of some of those who had helped the dead president execute the will of the people.

Well-known men added their tributes to the solemn melodies of the choir in making the occasion a memorable one. The American flag that concealed the tablet was drawn aside as the congregation sang with deep feeling "Nearer, My God, to Thee." The tablet occupies a position on the north wall of the main auditorium midway between the two entrances to the church.

Cholera Record in the Philippines.

Manila, June 30.—According to official reports there have been in Manila up to date 1,740 cases of cholera and 1,385 deaths from the disease. The same reports for the provinces show 9,444 cases and 7,038 deaths. Lieut. Col. Louis M. Maus, the insular health commissioner, says that there probably have been 2,000 deaths from cholera in the provinces of which it is impossible to get records.

Ordered to Manila.

Manila, June 30.—Brig. Gen. George W. Davis, in command of the American forces at Zamboanga, Mindanao, has been ordered to Manila to take command of the department of the north. Brig. Gen. Samuel S. Sumner will succeed Gen. Davis at Zamboanga.

Paris-Vienna Automobile Race.

Vienna, June 30.—The Paris-Vienna automobile race was won by Marcel Renault. He covered the distance from Paris to Vienna in 15 hours and 22 minutes, an average speed of 82 kilometers (about 51 miles) an hour.

FLOOD AT ALTON, ILL.

Much Damage Was Wrought to Manufacturing Plants.

Alton, Ill., June 30.—One of the most disastrous floods in the history of this city and vicinity resulted Sunday from the heavy rains of Friday and Saturday. At 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon it was estimated that 10,000 acres had been covered by the overflow of Wood river, which is three to six miles wide. Most of this land is either occupied by manufacturing interests or planted in crops. The greatest single disaster caused by the flood was the destruction of the plant of the Stoneware Pipe Co. at East Alton. The loss is estimated at $40,000. The water rose rapidly, being 18 inches higher than ever before, and filled an underground duct leading from the mammoth smoke stack to Kiln No. 4. The kiln was filled with stoneware and red-hot. When the water reached the kiln it turned into steam and an explosion followed. The kilns are built close to the American plant, and the explosion set fire to the buildings and other kilns, burning them to the ground within a short time.

In East Alton the residents were compelled to use skiffs to get about the principal streets. The water filled all the cellars in the village, and some of the largest stores were also flooded. A number of outbuildings were washed away, and the station of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad was carried away by the flood and lodged in a field a quarter of a mile distant.

The flood produced the worst railroad tie-up in recent years in the vicinity of the Altons. The Big Four and the Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis railroads were hit the hardest, while the Burlington sustained the smallest amount of damage.

St. Louis, June 30.—This city and vicinity is the center of a rainstorm of unprecedented severity, that has prevailed almost incessantly since Saturday morning. According to the local weather bureau reports 5.45 inches of rain fell here between 2:30 a. m. Saturday and 3 p. m. Sunday, and the end is apparently not in sight. At times the storm equaled a cloudburst in severity.

Considerable damage, the total estimated at about $250,000, resulted from the wind that accompanied the rain. Saturday night the wind attained a velocity of about 55 miles an hour, blowing down trees, telephone, telegraph and trolley poles, and interfering with communication of all sorts. From the surrounding country comes reports of destruction to and the washing out of railroad tracks and bridges, causing considerable delay to trains.

Five hundred feet of the north wall of the Varied Industries palace at the World's fair site fell Saturday night as the result of the storm, the water undermining the foundation when the wind was at its height. In places the World's fair grounds are covered with water.

Nearly all inbound trains were delayed Sunday as a result of the storm, arriving at Union station from 40 minutes to 5 or 6 hours late. Several wash-outs were reported, and telegraph wires were reported down, so that the trains could not be located.

STORM AT CHATTANOOGA.

Four People Killed and Much Damage Done to Farm Property.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 30.—Three people were killed in Saturday night's storm and much damage was done to farms in this section. Miss Cora Kelly, a schoolteacher of this city, while driving through a grove of trees in Meigs county, near Dayton, Tenn., was killed by a falling tree. Her companion was uninjured. James Grayson, proprietor of a sawmill, and his sawyer, Jesse May, were killed by falling timbers. Private Joseph Quirk, of the 7th infantry, while trying to prevent a stampede of the horses in the government corral, was trampled under the feet of the animals and probably fatally injured. Sunday afternoon during a thunder storm at Harriman, Tenn., a 15-year-old daughter of Frank Dugger was killed by lightning. Mr. Dugger's residence was burned to the ground and a second daughter was seriously injured.

UXORICIDE AND SUICIDE.

Henry Canfield Killed His Wife and Then Took His Own Life.

Sterling, Ill., June 30.—Henry Canfield, of Morrison, killed his wife, of whom he was jealous, Saturday night and then took his own life. The bodies were not found until Sunday. The discovery was made by a daughter of the dead couple, who entered their bedroom and found her parents lying dead on the floor side by side. The shock produced nervous prostration, and her condition is now critical. The murderer and suicide was 75 years old and his wife 69. They had been married for 50 years, and were the parents of several children, who are prominent here.

Largest Cotton Mill in the World.

Kansas City, Mo., June 30.—The largest cotton mill in the world is to be built within 20 miles of Kansas City. Ten million dollars is to be invested, $3,100,000 of which has already been subscribed by eastern and western men.

The German Budget.

Berlin, June 30.—The deficit in the German budget for the year 1901 is officially announced to be 40,000,000 marks. The railway revenue in particular has fallen off. It is stated that the prospects for 1902 are not bright.

LITERARY CURIOS.

Queer Titles by Which Some of the Current Works of Authors Are Called For.

The literary craze that is sweeping over the country is producing some queer results among those who are anxious to be considered literary," said the bookseller, relates the Atlanta Constitution. "Yesterday a woman was in here looking for 'The Crisis,' and I sent her away satisfied with 'The Crisis.' The same day a gentleman asked if I had 'Dry Am I.' I gave him 'Dri and I,' and he departed with what he had been looking for."

"But the other day I was fairly stumped when a party came in and asked me if I had 'Wait a Minute.'"

"Never heard of it?" said I. "That is funny," he answered; "it is being talked about, and I am anxious to read it."

"I looked all over my book lists and satisfied myself that there was no such book in existence, and he went away disappointed, and with an impression, I fear, that I was not keeping what I take pride in—a first-class book store."

"The day following, however, he came back smiling and asked for 'Tarry, Thou Till I Come.' He had taken the precaution this time to write the title down."

THE MOUNTAIN CHAUTAUQUA.

Mountain Lake Park, Maryland. On Crest of the Allegheny Mountains.

Unquestionably the most superb and sensible summer resort in America. 2500 feet above sea level, $350,000 invested in improvements, and still the place retains its charming rural simplicity. Five hotels and 100 cottages open for boarders at reasonable rates. This resort is the site of the "Mountain Chautauqua" and summer schools, and of the great Chautauqua itself, and is annually visited by thousands of persons who are strengthened in mind by the unexcelled facilities afforded for educational work and invigorated in body by the health giving influence for which this paradise of the mountains is famous. Excursion tickets may be obtained over the B. & O. South-Western from June 1st to September 30th, good returning until October 31st, 1902. Specially low rates during July and August for the Chautauqua and other gatherings. Mrs. D. Arnold, President German Woman's Club, Grand Pacific Hotel, Los Angeles, Cal., Relieved of a Tumor by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered four years ago with a tumor in my womb, and the doctors declared I must go to the hospital and undergo an operation, which I dreaded very much and hesitated to submit.

"My husband consulted an old friend who had studied medicine, although he was not a practicing physician, and he said he believed that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure me. That same day I took my first dose, and I kept it up faithfully until twelve bottles had been used, and not only did the tumor disappear, but my general health was very much improved and I had not felt so well since I was a young woman.

"As I have suffered no relapse since, and as I took no other medicine, I am sure that your Compound restored my health and I believe saved my life."—MRS. D. ARNOLD.

CONSUMPTION

THE CHILD TO THE FATHER

Father, it's your love that safely guides me,
Always it's around me, night and day,
It shelters me, and soothes, but never chides me.

Yet, father, there's a shadow in my way,
All the day, my father, I am playing
Under trees where sunbeams dance and dart—
But often just at night when I am praying
I feel this awful hunger in my heart.

Father, there is something—it has missed me,
I've felt it through my little days and years;
And even when you petted me and kissed me,
I've cried myself to sleep with burning tears.

To-day I saw a child and mother walking,
I caught a gentle shining in her eye,
And music in her voice when she was talking—
Oh, father, is it that that makes me cry?

Oh, never can I put my arms around her,
Or never cuddle closer in the night;
Mother, oh, my mother!—I've not found her—
I look for her and cry from dark to light!

His Friend,
The Enemy

By WILLIAM WALLACE COOK
Author of "Rogers of Butte," "The Spur of Necessity," "Mr. Pitt, Astrologer," etc.

CHAPTER V.—CONTINUED.

"We are quartered across the hall. After Col. Dingle got into such a predicament we could do no less than help him out of it. While you and your fellow townsmen were wrangling in the office, I left by a rear stairway and a rear door and had the liverman saddle and make ready the horse you rode over from Harmony last night. The animal was hitched near the building you propose to use for a courthouse. When Col. Dingle escaped from the room the coast was comparatively clear, as nearly all the inhabitants were at the hotel. For that reason he had no difficulty in getting away. In my haste I lost my bracelet and did not discover that it was gone until the angry citizens came flocking up the stairs. Then, of course, it was too late to recover it. I am very much obliged to you, Mr. Herbert, for proceeding so secretly in the matter. You had seen that bracelet before and you knew who the owner of it must be, so you had only to raise your voice and direct the whole pack against us. We're grateful, aren't we, Lois?"

"Very," said Miss Pinkney in a constrained voice.

"You are under no obligation to me," returned Guy. "The account is more than balanced by your kindness of last night, Miss Vlandingham."

At this juncture Guy heard some one coming up the stairs three steps at a time.

"Quick!" he murmured; replace your veils."

Miss Pinkney's hands trembled as she once more folded the gray covering across her face. But there was no trace of alarm in the actions of Miss Betty. She was as cool and self-possessed as though presiding at some social function in her own town of Harmony.

Barely were the fair faces covered when Sampson burst into the parlor. He stopped short on beholding the ladies and evidenced some confusion.

"What do you want, Sampson?" asked Guy.

"The Colonel wants to see you, Mr. Herbert, and in a tearing hurry."

Guy turned to give a parting salute to the ladies, but Miss Betty extended her hand. As he took the little palm in his she whispered:

"As a friend, I thank you from the bottom of my heart, Mr. Herbert; but as an enemy—I defy you! Do not be too sentimental nor over-chivalrous. Remember, I am here in the interests of Harmony and that it is your duty to look out for Concord."

With that he turned away and Guy followed Sampson out of the room.

CHAPTER VI.

Col. Keever was tremendously wrought up. He was pacing the restricted limits of his office and tossing his arms and talking to himself, so wrathfully oblivious of his surroundings that he did not notice the entrance of Guy and Sampson for several moments.

Occasionally the Colonel would halt, glower at a copy book fastened to the wall, shake his fist at it and address it by such terms as "infernal scoundrel," "contemptible cur," and so on. Finally he jerked the book from the wall, cast it on the floor and set his heel on the sheets that were strung upon it.

"Great guns, Colonel," cried Sampson, "you're spoiling about a dozens' stickful of copy."

"Oh, is it you, Sampson?" said the Colonel, whirling. "Mr. Herbert, I want a word with you, sir." He picked up the book with its attached sheets and handed it to the printer. "Go out and get to work on that," he said, shortly. Sampson vanished into the workroom forthwith. "How long have you been in this office, Mr. Herbert?" asked the Colonel.

"About two minutes," replied Guy. "Then you witnessed my ebullition of wrath, sir, and I beg your pardon. Ah, but I have a devil of a temper! I would fight at the drop of a hat—possibly, sir, I would jar the hand that held the hat. It's my southern breeding, I suppose; my southern breeding, backed by long years of slaughter in our late war."

I am trying to outgrow my temper, but success comes very slowly. Some ancient philosopher said that every man has a wolf imprisoned in his breast. I believe that, Herbert, and I am trying to strangle my own particular wolf. It was the wolf that hurled scorching words at that copy book and tore it from the wall, sir; not Keever—no, no, not Keever. But—" and the Colonel brought his right fist down in his left palm—"the wolf is going to have the upper hand until I square accounts with this man Dingle."

"I wouldn't do anything rash, Colonel," ventured Guy.

"Rash? Gad! What would you do if a man struck you twice across the face with his hat?"

"Knock him down," said Guy, promptly.

"Precisely, and that's what any man with an ordinary temper would do. But that would only be a half-way measure with me. I presume you noticed that I did not knock Dingle down?"

"I did," was the dry response.

"I restrained myself, held myself in check in order that I might take a more terrible vengeance. Herbert, I am going to have Dingle's life!"

"You certainly are not—"

"There, there! Don't try to argue with me, for it is useless, utterly useless. I have made up my mind. Let me assure you that I am no stranger to the field of honor. At one time, sir, the code duello was my vade mecum. I counted that day lost, Herbert, which passed without my calling some one out."

The Colonel pulled the brim of his white "top" hat firmly down over his brow. In his estimation a stiff white hat was the acme of gentility, the crown and symbol of a gentleman. A stiff white hat, moreover, throws about its wearer a political glamour, which was something not to be ignored by the editor of that justly celebrated sheet, the Concord Blizzard. The Colonel not only pulled down the brim of his hat, but he buttoned the two lower buttons of his frock coat across his capacious stomach, rested one elbow on the top of his desk and swung his cane—swung it slowly and relentlessly. His manner plainly stating that threats, prayers and entreaties would alike be powerless to swerve him. Guy thought best not to make another attempt.

In a little while the Colonel ceased swinging his cane long enough to indicate with the point of it a letter which lay open on the top of his desk.

"Read that, Herbert," he said; "by gad, you read that."

Guy cast his eyes down and read the following:

"Archibald Keever, Colonel so-called—Sir: I have been appointed a committee of one to rid this territory of your baneful presence. You have cumbered the earth too long, and I shall be pleased to offer you a proof of my distinguished regard with a six-shooter at 20 paces, time and place to be designated by you. My only stipulation is that the place selected be equidistant from Concord and Harmony. Reply by post. If you do not meet me, I shall make my pleasant duty to publicly chastise you and denounce you as the arrant braggart that you are."

"ISAAC DINGLE."

"That certainly has a business-like sound," commented Guy.

The Colonel laughed tragically.

"Colonel, so-called!" he sneered.

"By gad, I didn't have to move west, like Dingle, to get a title. I won it on the field of battle, sir, spilling my blood for my country. He asks for an affectionate exchange of paws—"

"QUICK, REPLACE YOUR VEILS!"

der and ball and I shall give him a heartfelt token of my esteem at the distance specified. Herbert, I want you for my second."

Guy shook his head. The cane stopped swinging with a jerk and a hard, hard look came into the Colonel's eyes.

"Do I understand you to say, sir, that you will not accommodate me?"

"I don't believe in duels, Colonel. Nature has endowed every gentleman with a pair of fists. If these weapons are powerless to protect his honor, his honor is hardly worth bothering about."

The pith of this remark escaped the Colonel entirely.

"I am not only protecting my own honor, Herbert," he said coldly, "but the honor of our town as well. Your 1,200 lots share in the general ignominy, and it is your duty to stand by me in this little affair. Do I still understand you to say that you won't?"

"You do. I want a fair and square fight for the county seat and I don't approve of any coarse or gratuitous flings like that of the weathervane. Claptrap of that kind merely intensifies the hostile feeling which is already too bitter and vengeful. It is only a step from our present situation to warfare and bloodshed. I was in grave peril, last night—"

"I was going to ask you about that," broke in the Colonel, curiosity for the moment overcoming his resentment.

"You succeeded in getting in?"

"Yes; and I succeeded in getting out again and saving myself a rough experience only through the magnanimity of Mr. Vlandingham."

"Vlandingham is a knave, sir!"

"Mr. Vlandingham is a gentleman, Col. Keever!"

"He couldn't come of the stock he does and be a gentleman."

"Rot!" exclaimed Guy disgustedly.

"We won't quarrel, Herbert; it won't do for us to quarrel. Did you discover anything at the meeting?"

"Nothing of any consequence."

At that moment the office door opened and a man who looked like a day laborer came into the room. He had a shifty eye, and unrazored face and wore a red and sweat-stained shirt. His hands were big and seamed with toil.

"Who are you, sir?" demanded the Colonel.

"My name's Hepburn," replied the man, rolling his eyes from the Colonel to Guy, and then about the room. "Up to yesterday I was workin' on the section at Harmony. But I got fired yesterday mornin'."

"Ah, ha!" returned the Colonel, blinking. Here was a deserter from the enemy, a man with a grievance. "What do you want, Mr. Hepburn?"

"I suppose I can talk before him all right," answered Hepburn, nodding his head in Guy's direction. "He was the chap that got out of Harmony last night by the skin of his teeth."

"Certainly you can talk before him," said the Colonel.

"Is there anyone else to hear us?" Hepburn's gaze continued to travel around the sanctum, and his face became anxious.

"There's no one else to hear us," answered the Colonel impatiently.

"Proceed, sir; proceed."

"Well, then I want to sell some information."

"What is it about?" queried the Colonel, warily.

"About Harmony."

"What's it worth?"

"It's worth hundreds to you, mebbey thousands, and mebbey it means the county seat—I don't know. I want $20 for the information. Got to have money to get to Jintown. Ain't never going back to Harmony no more."

The Colonel laid his cane on top of his desk, removed his hat and placed it carefully beside the cane, and then began to rub his hands.

"What do you say?" asked Hepburn.

The Colonel looked toward Guy as though expecting him to foot the bill.

"I say 'No,'" said Guy. "I don't want your information, Mr. Hepburn, and decline to hand over the price of your treachery."

Hepburn appeared startled and the Colonel's jaw dropped spasmodically.

"Are you mad?" spluttered Keever.

"Let me tell you, sir, that if you try to run this county seat fight according to any Sunday-school notions we'll be beaten hands down."

"All right," returned Guy cheerfully.

"It's not all right, sir," cried the Colonel. "You with your 1,200 lots are not the only man interested. There are others. In behalf of the others—he drew a bill from his pocket and handed it to Hepburn—"I shall pay Mr. Hepburn the price of his treachery, if you please."

"Then look to it that the money doesn't come out of the Townsite fund," warned Guy.

Col. Keever held his head very high and refused to take any notice of these words.

"Go on," said he to Hepburn.

"Well," said Hepburn, casting a nervous glance at Guy, "one of Vlandingham's hired men is a friend of mine, and he told me what I am going to tell you. Cap'n Blue has formed a company of twenty men, which he calls the Harmony Invincibles. They're drilling nearly all the time."

"Is that all?"

"That's only half. The other half is the biggest part of the news. There are two spies in this town. They are at the hotel now disguised as Sisters of Charity. One of them is Vlandingham's daughter and t'other one is a Miss Pinkney."

A cold chill swept along Guy's nerves. Had he known what was coming he would have reached out and choked the section man into silence. The Colonel let off a roar of delight and grabbed up his hat and cane.

"Are you done, Hepburn?" he cried.

"Ain't that enough?" asked the informer, wickedly, his hand on the door knob.

"It'll do, it'll do. Mind you keep this to yourself, man."

"They'd hang me if I ever went back to Harmony and they found it out."

Hepburn departed and the Colonel turned to Guy.

"Young man," said he, severely, "your notions of right and wrong are exaggerated and out of place. But for me those two items of information would never have been delivered. Vlandingham's daughter here at our mercy! Gad, think of that!"

The Colonel started for the door and Guy stepped quickly in front of him.

"What do you intend to do about it?" asked Guy, quietly.

"Do?" blustered the Colonel. "Why, I'm going to have Pettibone, the sheriff, arrest 'em both. We'll hold 'em as hostages. Vlandingham will have to bargain with us for their release, by gad! We'll make it cost him the county seat!"

"You'll do nothing of the kind," said Guy, a glint of steel coming into his eyes.

"What's this?" cried the Colonel.

"By the eternal, it looks as though you are playing into the hands of the enemy and that we have three traitors in camp instead of two."

"It's immaterial how it looks to you. I will deal with these ladies at the hotel."

"No, by gad! Stand aside! Stand aside, I say, or I'll brain you!"

The Colonel caught his cane by the lower end and flourished the heavy handle above Guy's head. Quick as a flash the young man caught the stick, jerked it into a corner; then he grabbed the Colonel by both shoulders and pinned him against the partition.

"Attempt to arrest those young ladies, or say a word about their being in this town," he muttered, fiercely, "and I'll see that you have cause to regret it. I'll take care of them."

After giving the Colonel a final bump against the partition he released him and dashed from the office.

CHAPTER VII.

It was about 11 o'clock when Guy left the Colonel's office. He did not go to the hotel immediately, but hastened first across the street to the Avery stable. A big strapping fellow came out and advanced toward him from the shadowy regions between the stalls. Guy was surprised, for in spite of the big fellow's turned-up coat collar and continued attempts to keep his face averted, he recognized him as Barney.

Guy had not much time to waste in useless expressions of astonishment or in any other extended chain of thought. He immediately connected Barney with that note of which he had been the bearer, and which was written on the back of a sheet of newspaper copy. The next instant he recalled Vlandingham's words about Barney's inability to read writing. If this were true, Barney certainly could not have been the author of that note. Possibly there were four spies in camp instead of two. Was the fourth man Sampson?

"Well, Barney," said Guy, cynically, "we meet again."

"You've got the best o' me," answered Barney, staring blankly at Guy.

"Don't try to play the innocent," went on Guy, drawing closer to the stableman and speaking in a low and hurried tone. "I know you're a Harmony man, but I give you my word that I won't say anything about it, providing you stop your spying operations from this on. Just now I want you to help me. Miss Vlandingham and Miss Pinkney are here in town disguised as Sisters of Charity. Col. Keever has found it out and I want to get them started back to Harmony before any harm befalls them. Put your best team to a double-seated carriage in the shortest possible order and drive to the hotel."

CASH ON THE NAIL.

How for the Lack of $200 a South American Republic Was Thrown Into Bankruptcy.

"I happened to get caught in one of the revolutions of the South American states," said a Boston mining engineer, according to a local exchange, "and within two hours of the outbreak I had been sentenced to be shot. The president was no friend of mine, and he was in a hurry to get me under ground."

"At midnight I was marched out under guard, and as we came to the place of execution I said to the lieutenant in charge of the party:

"'Look here, old boy. I have $200 in gold hidden away.'

"'Is it possible?' he gasped.

"If you shoot me, it will never be found."

"Of course not, but if I spare you the money is mine and you disappear as quickly as possible. Great heavens, what luck!"

"And you'll take the money and turn me loose?"

"You bet! Why $200 would buy your life four times over. Cast him loose, boys. Now, senior, where is the gold? Bless my heart, what a president we have got! He was going to have a man shot who could give up $200!"

"Thirty days later when the revolution had failed and the late president was again a nobody, I met him one day, and he threw up his hands and exclaimed:

"'Alas, senior, what a trick you played me! For the want of the $200 you said nothing about, our cause has failed and our country is for ever ruined.'

Bring Your Own Ability.

If one brings the ability, the world will provide the opportunity. Sooner or later, if we go the right way about it, the world gives us a fair rate of exchange for ourselves. But, of course, much depends on how we place our goods on the market. Gifts in themselves are not enough. We must know how to manage our gifts. More than half of success lies in the proper management of our gifts. The gifts are hardly more important. Of course, there are people who expect success, without gifts, or work, or anything; idle malcontents, who seem to think the world is in debt to them for honoring it with their presence, thriftless camp followers in the battle of life; a strange race of men and women, at whom one can only look with curious wonder.—Success.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS.

Review of the Work Accomplished at This Session.

Notably Among the Acts Is the Isthmian Canal Bill, Which Consummates the Efforts of Half a Century.

Washington, June 30.—The work of congress is now practically closed, so that it is possible to sum up the record of what has been accomplished during the past seven months, which constitute the first session of the 57th congress. The session has been marked by exceptional business activity, with many questions of far-reaching general interest engaging attention. With the exception of the Cuban reciprocity bill most of the larger subjects of general legislation have been enacted as laws or will become such before the session closes. Notable among these larger measures is the Isthmian canal bill, which consummates the efforts of a half century to link together the waters of the Atlantic and the Pacific. This bill probably involves a larger sum of money than that covering any other single undertaking by the government outside of war expenditures. The Philippine civil government bill is another measure of far-reaching importance, extending to our remote Pacific possessions a system of internal government, together with coinage, currency, banking, corporation, timber and homestead laws. Among the other important laws enacted are those repealing the war revenue taxes, extending and making more effective the Chinese exclusion laws; establishing a tariff for goods to and from the Philippines; extending the charter of national banks for 20 years; establishing a permanent census office; restricting the sale of oleomargarine by placing a high tax on imitation butter; providing a consular and diplomatic service for Cuba; establishing an extensive system by which government will aid in the irrigation of the arid and uncultivated soil of the west.

The repeal of the war revenue taxes is reduced taxation $73,250,000. The act is said to be the largest single reduction of taxation ever made in the country. By this step the last of the war taxes imposed at the beginning of our war with Spain has been wiped out. The Philippine tariff act imposes 75 per cent of the Dingley tax on articles of articles coming from the Philippines. It also imposes the United States, and a Philippines on articles entering the United States from the United States the Philippine duties established by the Philippine commission.

The irrigation act is of special importance to the development of the west. It carries an irrigation fund in the treasury department into which is to be paid the proceeds of the sales of public lands in the arid states. This fund in turn is to be used in storing water and establishing irrigation systems, the irrigation sections to be open to homesteaders, who are to be charged by a proportionate share of the cost of the improvement.

The Chinese exclusion law continues the exclusion "until otherwise provided by law," and also applies the exclusion "to the island territory under the jurisdiction of the United States."

Aside from these important laws there are a number of other measures of general importance which have passed one or both houses but have not progressed to the final stage. These include the anti-anarchy legislation which grew out of the assassination of President McKinley. Bills restricting anarchy and throwing safeguards about the president have passed both branches of congress, but it has been impossible to reach an agreement in conference, so that the subject goes over until next December.

A bill giving statehood to Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma, known as the omnibus statehood bill, passed the house and the senate has determined to take up the matter early in the next session.

JESSE JAMES' BODY.

The Remains Disinterred and Reburied in the Cemetery at Kearney, Mo.

Kansas City, Mo., June 30.—Jesse James' body, which has been buried for 20 years in the door yard of the old James homestead, near Excelsior Springs, Mo., was disinterred Sunday and buried in the cemetery at Kearney, Mo., beside the body of his father and wife. Mrs. Zerilda Samuels, mother of Jesse James; Frank James, his brother, and Jesse and Mary, his son and daughter, attended the ceremony. A funeral service was held, and the pallbearers were comrades of Jesse James when all were members of Quantrell's band. When the skeleton of his father was dug up Jesse James, jr., picked up the skull and pointed out the hole made by the bullet from Bob Ford's pistol.

Engagement in Morong Province. Manila, June 30.—A detachment of United States marines and a force of native constabulary have had an engagement with a large body of Ladrones in Morong province, Luzon. One marine and seven Ladrones were killed.

Eight Inches of Snow. Denver, Col., June 30.—The storm damage in Denver and vicinity is estimated all the way from $10,000 to $50,000. Snow fell to the depth of eight inches in Leadville and many other places in the mountains.

THE CHILD TO THE FATHER

Father, it's your love that safely guides me,
Always it's around me, night and day,
It shelters me, and soothes me, but never
chides me.
Yet, father, there's a shadow in my way;
All the day, my father, I am playing Under trees where sunbeams dance and dart—
But often just at night when I am praying
I feel this awful hunger in my heart.
Father, there is something—it has missed
me—
I've felt it through my little days and years;
And even when you patted me and kissed
me
I've cried myself to sleep with burning tears.

To-day I saw a child and mother walking,
I caught a gentle shining in her eye,
And music in her voice when she was talking—
Oh, father, is it that that makes me cry?
Oh, never can I put my arms around her,
Or never cuddle closer in the night;
Mother, oh, my mother!—I've not found her—
I look for her and cry from dark to light!

"We are quartered across the hall. After Col. Dingle got into such a predicament we could do no less than help him out of it. While you and your fellow townsmen were wrangling in the office, I left by a rear stairway and a rear door and had the liverman saddle and make ready the horse you rode over from Harmony last night. The animal was hitched near the building you propose to use for a courthouse. When Col. Dingle escaped from the room the coast was comparatively clear, as nearly all the inhabitants were at the hotel. For that reason he had no difficulty in getting away. In my haste I lost my bracelet and did not discover that it was gone until the angry citizens came flocking up the stairs. Then, of course, it was too late to recover it. I am very much obliged to you, Mr. Herbert, for proceeding so secretly in the matter. You had seen that bracelet before and you knew who the owner of it must be, so you had only to raise your voice and direct the whole pack against us. We're grateful, aren't we, Lois?"

"Very," said Miss Pinkney in a constrained voice.

"You are under no obligation to me," returned Guy. "The account is more than balanced by your kindness of last night, Miss Vlandingham."

"Quick!" he murmured; replace your veils."

Miss Pinkney's hands trembled as she once more folded the gray covering across her face. But there was no trace of alarm in the actions of Miss Betty. She was as cool and self-possessed as though presiding at some social function in her own town of Harmony.

Barely were the fair faces covered when Sampson burst into the parlor. He stopped short on beholding the ladies and evidenced some confusion.

"What do you want, Sampson?" asked Guy.

"The Colonel wants to see you, Mr. Herbert, and in a tearing hurry."

Guy turned to give a parting salute to the ladies, but Miss Betty extended her hand. As he took the little palm in his she whispered:

"As a friend, I thank you from the bottom of my heart, Mr. Herbert; but as an enemy—I defy you! Do not be too sentimental nor over-chivalrous. Remember, I am here in the interests of Harmony and that it is your duty to look out for Concord."

With that he turned away and Guy followed Sampson out of the room.

CHAPTER VI.

Col. Keever was tremendously wrought up. He was pacing the restricted limits of his office and tossing his arms and talking to himself, so wrathfully oblivious of his surroundings that he did not notice the entrance of Guy and Sampson for several moments.

Occasionally the Colonel would halt, gazer at a copy book fastened to the wall, shake his fist at it and address it by such terms as "infernal scoundrel," "contemptible cur," and so on. Finally he jerked the book from the wall, cast it on the floor and set his heel on the sheets that were strung upon it.

"Great guns, Colonel," cried Sampson, "you're spoiling about a dozens stickful of copy."

"Oh, is it you, Sampson?" said the Colonel, whirling. "Mr. Herbert, I want a word with you, sir." He picked up the book with its attached sheets and handed it to the printer. "Go out and get to work on that," he said, shortly. Sampson vanished into the workroom forthwith. "How long have you been in this office, Mr. Herbert?" asked the Colonel.

"About two minutes," replied Guy. "Then you witnessed my ebullition of wrath, sir, and I beg your pardon. Ah, but I have a devil of a temper! I would fight at the drop of a hat—possibly, sir, I would jar the hand that held the hat. It's my southern breeding, I suppose; my southern breeding, backed by long years of slaughter in our late war."

I am trying to outgrow my temper, but success comes very slowly. Some ancient philosopher said that every man has a wolf imprisoned in his breast. I believe that, Herbert, and I am trying to strangle my own particular wolf. It was the wolf that hurled scorching words at that copy book and tore it from the wall, sir; not Keever—no, no, not Keever. But—and the Colonel brought his right fist down in his left palm—"the wolf is going to have the upper hand until I square accounts with this man Dingle."

"I wouldn't do anything rash, Colonel," ventured Guy.

"Rash? Gad! What would you do if a man struck you twice across the face with his hat?"

"Knock him down," said Guy, promptly.

"Precisely, and that's what any man with an ordinary temper would do. But that would only be a half-way measure with me. I presume you noticed that I did not knock Dingle down?"

"I did," was the dry response.

"I restrained myself, held myself in check in order that I might take a more terrible vengeance. Herbert, I am going to have Dingle's life!"

"You certainly are not—"

"There, there! Don't try to argue with me, for it is useless, utterly useless. I have made up my mind. Let me assure you that I am no stranger to the field of honor. At one time, sir, the code duello, was my vade mecum. I counted that day lost, Herbert, which passed without my calling some one out."

The Colonel pulled the brim of his white "top" hat firmly down over his brow. In his estimation a stiff white hat was the acme of gentility, the crown and symbol of a gentleman. A stiff white hat, moreover, throws about its wearer a political glamour, which was something not to be ignored by the editor of that justly celebrated sheet, the Concord Blizzard. The Colonel not only pulled down the brim of his hat, but he buttoned the two lower buttons of his frock coat across his capacious stomach, rested one elbow on the top of his desk and swung his cane—swung it slowly and relentlessly. His manner plainly stating that threats, prayers and entreaties would alike be powerless to swerve him, Guy thought best not to make another attempt.

In a little while the Colonel ceased swinging his cane long enough to indicate with the point of it a letter which lay open on the top of his desk.

"Read that, Herbert," he said; "by gad, you read that."

Guy cast his eyes down and read the following:

"Archibald Keever, Colonel so-called—Sir: I have been appointed a committee of one to rid this territory of your baneful presence. You have cumbered the earth too long, and I shall be pleased to offer you a proof of my distinguished regard with a six-shooter at 20 paces, time and place to be designated by you. My only stipulation is that the place selected be equidistant from Concord and Harmony. Reply by post. If you do not meet me, I shall make it my pleasant duty to publicly chastise you and denounce you as the arrant braggart that you are."

"ISAAC DINGLE."

"That certainly has a business-like sound," commented Guy.

The Colonel laughed tragically.

"Colonel, so-called!" he sneered. "By gad, I didn't have to move west, like Dingle, to get a title. I won it on the field of battle, sir, spilling my blood for my country. He asks for an affectionate exchange of powder and ball and I shall give him a heartfelt token of my esteem at the distance specified. Herbert, I want you for my second."

"QUICK, REPLACE YOUR VEILS!"

Guy shook his head. The cane stopped swinging with a jerk and a hard, hard look came into the Colonel's eyes.

"Do I understand you to say, sir, that you will not accommodate me?" "I don't believe in duels, Colonel. Nature has endowed every gentleman with a pair of fists. If these weapons are powerless to protect his honor, his honor is hardly worth bothering about."

The pith of this remark escaped the Colonel entirely.

"I am not only protecting my own honor, Herbert," he said coldly, "but the honor of our town as well. Your 1,200 lots share in the general ignominy, and it is your duty to stand by me in this little affair. Do I still understand you to say that you won't?"

"You do. I want a fair and square fight for the county seat and I don't approve of any coarse or gratuitous flings like that of the weathervane. Claptrap of that kind merely intensifies the hostile feeling which is already too bitter and vengeful. It is only a step from our present situation to warfare and bloodshed. I was in grave peril, last night—"

"I was going to ask you about that," broke in the Colonel, curiosity for the moment overcoming his resentment.

"You succeeded in getting in?"

"Yes; and I succeeded in getting out again and saving myself a rough experience only through the magnanimity of Mr. Vlandingham."

"Vlandingham is a knave, sir!"

"Mr. Vlandingham is a gentleman, Col. Keever!"

"He couldn't come of the stock he does and be a gentleman."

"Not!" exclaimed Guy disgustedly.

"We won't quarrel, Herbert; it won't do for us to quarrel. Did you discover anything at the meeting?"

"Nothing of any consequence."

At that moment the office door opened and a man who looked like a day laborer came into the room. He had a shifty eye, and unrazored face and wore a red and sweat-stained shirt. His hands were big and seamed with toil.

"Who are you, sir?" demanded the Colonel.

"My name's Hepburn," replied the man, rolling his eyes from the Colonel to Guy, and then about the room. "Up to yesterday I was workin' on the section at Harmony. But I got fired yesterday mornin'."

"Ah, ha!" returned the Colonel, blinking. Here was a deserter from the enemy, a man with a grievance.

"What do you want, Mr. Hepburn?"

"I suppose I can talk before him all right," answered Hepburn, nodding his head in Guy's direction. "He was the chap that got out of Harmony last night by the skin of his teeth."

"Certainly you can talk before him," said the Colonel.

"Is there anyone else to hear us?" Hepburn's gaze continued to travel around the sanctum, and his face became anxious.

"There's no one else to hear us," answered the Colonel impatiently.

"Proceed, sir; proceed."

"Well, then I want to sell some information."

"What is it about?" queried the Colonel, warily.

"About Harmony."

"What's it worth?"

"It's worth hundreds to you, mebbe thousands, and mebbe it means the county seat—I don't know. I want $20 for the information. Got to have money to get to Jintown. Ain't never going back to Harmony no more."

The Colonel laid his cane on top of his desk, removed his hat and placed it carefully beside the cane, and then began to rub his hands.

"What do you say?" asked Hepburn.

The Colonel looked toward Guy as though expecting him to foot the bill.

"I say 'No,'" said Guy. "I don't want your information, Mr. Hepburn, and decline to hand over the price of your treachery."

Hepburn appeared startled and the Colonel's jaw dropped spasmodically.

"Are you mad?" spluttered Keever.

"Let me tell you, sir, that if you try to run this county seat fight according to any Sunday-school notions we'll be beaten hands down."

"All right," returned Guy cheerfully.

"It's not all right, sir," cried the Colonel. "You with your 1,200 lots are not the only man interested. There are others. In behalf of the others"—he drew a bill from his pocket and handed it to Hepburn—"I shall pay Mr. Hepburn the price of his treachery, if you please."

"Then look to it that the money doesn't come out of the Townsfolk fund," warned Guy.

Col. Keever held his head very high and refused to take any notice of these words.

"Go on," said he to Hepburn.

"Well," said Hepburn, casting a nervous glance at Guy, "one of Vlandingham's hired men is a friend of mine, and he told me what I am going to tell you. Cap'n Blue has formed a company of twenty men, which he calls the Harmony Invincibles. They're drilling nearly all the time."

"Is that all?"

"That's only half. The other half is the biggest part of the news. There are two spies in this town. They are at the hotel now disguised as Sisters of Charity. One of them is Vlandingham's daughter an' t'other one is a Miss Pinkney."

A cold chill swept along Guy's nerves. Had he known what was coming he would have reached out and choked the section man into silence. The Colonel let off a roar of delight and grabbed up his hat and cane.

"Are you done, Hepburn?" he cried.

"Ain't that enough?" asked the informer, wickedly, his hand on the door knob.

"It'll do, it'll do. Mind you keep this to yourself, man."

"They'd hang me if I ever went back to Harmony and they found it out." Hepburn departed and the Colonel turned to Guy.

"Young man," said he, severely, "your notions of right and wrong are exaggerated and out of place. But for me those two items of information would never have been delivered. Vlandingham's daughter here at our mercy! Gad, think of that!"

The Colonel started for the door and Guy stepped quickly in front of him.

"What do you intend to do about it?" asked Guy, quietly.

"Do?" blustered the Colonel. "Why, I'm going to have Pettibone, the sheriff, arrest 'em both. We'll hold 'em as hostages. Vlandingham will have to bargain with us for their release, by gad! We'll make it cost him the county seat!"

"You'll do nothing of the kind," said Guy, a glint of steel coming into his eyes.

"What's this?" cried the Colonel.

"By the eternal, it looks as though you are playing into the hands of the enemy and that we have three traitors in camp instead of two."

"It's immaterial how it looks to you. I will deal with these tactics at the hotel."

"No, by gad! Stand aside! Stand aside, I say, or I'll brain you."

The Colonel caught his cane by the lower end and flourished the heavy handle above Guy's head. Quick as a flash the young man caught the stick, jerked it from the Colonel's grasp and flung it into a corner; then he grabbed the Colonel by both shoulders and pinned him against the partition.

"Attempt to arrest those young ladies, or say a word about their being in this town," he muttered, fiercely, "and I'll see that you have cause to regret it. I'll take care of them."

After giving the Colonel a final bump against the partition he released him and dashed from the office.

CHAPTER VII.

It was about 11 o'clock when Guy left the Colonel's office. He did not go to the hotel immediately, but hastened first across the street to the Avery stable. A big strapping fellow came out and advanced toward him from the shadowy regions between the stalls. Guy was surprised, for in spite of the big fellow's turned-up coat collar and continued attempts to keep his face averted, he recognized him as Barney.

Guy had not much time to waste in useless expressions of astonishment or in any other extended chain of thought. He immediately connected Barney with that note of which he had been the bearer, and which was written on the back of a sheet of newspaper copy. The next instant he recalled Vlandingham's words about Barney's inability to read writing. If this were true, Barney certainly could not have been the author of that note. Possibly there were four spies in camp instead of two. Was the fourth man Sampson?

"Well, Barney," said Guy, cynically, "we meet again."

"You've got the best o' me," answered Barney, staring blankly at Guy.

"Don't try to play the innocent," went on Guy, drawing closer to the stableman and speaking in a low and hurried tone. "I know you're a Harmony man, but I give you my word that I won't say anything about it, providing you stop your spying operations from this on. Just now I want you to help me. Miss Vlandingham and Miss Pinkney are here in town disguised as Sisters of Charity. Col. Keever has found it out and I want to get them started back to Harmony before any harm befalls them. CASH ON THE NAIL.

How for the Lack of $200 a South American Republic Was Thrown Into Bankruptcy.

Bring Your Own Ability.

If one brings the ability, the world will provide the opportunity. Sooner or later, if we go the right way about it, the world gives us a fair rate of exchange for ourselves. But, of course, much depends on how we place our goods on the market. Gifts in themselves are not enough. We must know how to manage our gifts. More than half of success lies in the proper management of our gifts. The gifts are hardly more important. Of course, there are people who expect success, without gifts, or work, or anything; idle malcontents, who seem to think the world is in debt to them for honoring it with their presence, thriftless camp followers in the battle of life; a strange race of men and women, at whom one can only look with curious wonder.—Success.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS.

Review of the Work Accomplished at This Session.

Notably Among the Acts Is the Isthmian Canal Bill, Which Consummates the Efforts of Half a Century.

Washington, June 30.—The work of congress is now practically closed, so that it is possible to sum up the record of what has been accomplished during the past seven months, which constitute the first session of the 57th congress. The session has been marked by exceptional business activity, with many questions of far-reaching general interest engaging attention. With the exception of the Cuban reciprocity bill most of the larger subjects of general legislation have been enacted as laws or will become such before the session closes. Notable among these larger measures is the Isthmian canal bill, which consummates the efforts of a half century to link together the waters of the Atlantic and the Pacific. This bill probably involves a larger sum of money than that covering any other single undertaking by the government outside of war expenditures. The Philippine civil government bill is another measure of far-reaching importance, extending to our remote Pacific possessions a system of internal government, together with coinage, currency, banking, corporation, timber and homestead laws. Among the other important laws enacted are those repealing the war revenue taxes, extending and making more effective the Chinese exclusion laws; establishing a tariff for goods to and from the Philippines; extending the charter of national banks for 20 years; establishing a permanent census office; restricting the sale of oleomargarine by placing a high tax on imitation butter; providing a consular and diplomatic service for Cuba; establishing an extensive system by which the government will aid in the irrigation of the arid and uncultivated sections of the west.

The repeal of the war revenue taxes reduced taxation $73,250,000, and is said to be the largest single reduction of taxation ever made in this country. By this step the last of the taxes imposed at the beginning of our war with Spain has been wiped out. The Philippine tariff act imposes 75 per cent of the Dingley tariff rates on articles coming from the Philippines to the United States, and also imposes on articles entering the Philippines from the United States the rates of duties established by the Philippine commission.

The irrigation act is of special importance to the development of the west. It carries an irrigation fund in the treasury department into which is to be paid the proceeds of the sales of public lands in the arid states. This fund in turn is to be used in storing water and establishing irrigation systems, the irrigation sections to be open to homesteaders, who are to be charged by a proportionate share of the cost of the improvement.

The Chinese exclusion law continues the exclusion "until otherwise provided by law," and also applies the exclusion "to the island territory under the jurisdiction of the United States."

Aside from these important laws there are a number of other measures of general importance which have passed one or both houses but have not progressed to the final stage. These include the anti-anarchy legislation which grew out of the assassination of President McKinley. Bills restricting anarchy and throwing safeguards about the president have passed both branches of congress, but it has been impossible to reach an agreement in conference, so that the subject goes over until next December.

A bill giving statehood to Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma, known as the omnibus statehood bill, passed the house and the senate has determined to take up the matter early in the next session.

JESSE JAMES' BODY.

The Remains Disinterred and Reburied in the Cemetery at Kearney, Mo.

Kansas City, Mo., June 30.—Jesse James' body, which has been buried for 20 years in the door yard of the old James homestead, near Excelsior Springs, Mo., was disinterred Sunday and buried in the cemetery at Kearney, Mo., beside the body of his father and wife. Mrs. Zerda Samuels, mother of Jesse James; Frank James, his brother, and Jesse and Mary, his son and daughter, attended the ceremony. A funeral service was held, and the pallbearers were comrades of Jesse James when all were members of Quantrell's band. When the skeleton of his father was dug up Jesse James, jr., picked up the skull and pointed out the hole made by the bullet from Bob Ford's pistol.

Engagement in Morong Province. Manila, June 30.—A detachment of United States marines and a force of native constabulary have had an engagement with a large body of Ladrones in Morong province, Luzon. One marine and seven Ladrones were killed.

Eight Inches of Snow.

Denver, Col., June 30.—The storm damage in Denver and vicinity is estimated all the way from $10,000 to $50,000. Snow fell to the depth of eight inches in Leadville and many other places in the mountains.

Women and Jewels.

Jewels, candy flowers, man—that is the order of a woman's preferences. Jewels form a magnet of mighty power to the average woman. Even that most precious of all jewels, health, is often ruined in the strenuous efforts to make money to purchase them. If a woman will risk her health to get a coveted gem, then let her fortify herself against the insidious consequences of coughs, colds and bronchial affections by the regular use of Dr. Boschee's German Syrup. It will promptly arrest consumption in its early stages and heal the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the "r" disease from the system. It cures all but it is a certain cure for coughs, colds and all bronchial troubles. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at W. T. Brooks'. Get Green's Special Almanac.

Make your affairs known in the market place, and one will call them black and another white.

A Good Thing.

German Syrup is the special prescription of Dr. A. Boschee, a celebrated German Physician, and is acknowledged to be one of the most fortunate discoveries in medicine. It quickly cures Coughs, Colds and all Lung troubles of the severest nature, removing, as it does, the cause of the affection and leaving the parts in a strong and healthy condition. It is not an experimental medicine, but has stood the test of years, giving satisfaction in every case, which its rapidly increasing sale every season confirms. Two billion bottles sold annually. Boschee's German Syrup was introduced in the United States in 1868, and is now sold in every town and village in the civilized world. Three doses will relieve any ordinary cough. Price, 75c. Get Green's Special Almanac. W. T. Brooks.

Oil for the Children.

Give them oil—cod-liver oil. It's curious to see the result.

Give it to the peevish, fretful child, and he laughs. Give it to the pale, anæmic child, and his face becomes rosy and full of health. Take a flat-chested child, or a child that has stopped growing, give him the oil, and he will grow big and strong like the rest.

This is not a new scheme. It has been done for years. Of course you must use the right oil. Scott's Emulsion is the one.

Scott's Emulsion neither looks nor tastes like oil because we are so careful in making it pleasant to take.

The "Royal Muskoka."

The opening up of the Highlands of Ontario, Canada, and the beautiful Muskoka Lake region has been a veritable labour of love to the advertising department of the Grand Trunk Railway and the coming summer promises such an influx of American tourists as will amply justify the outlay in hotel accommodation which has been recently made. The "Royal Muskoka," in fact, promises to become to Canada, in summer, what the "Royal Poncia" is to Florida in the winter months, the fashionable resort of the continent, where the romantic and the beautiful can be enjoyed with all the luxury and comfort of the most modern hotel life. The "Royal Muskoka" which has been built at the cost of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, very much resembles the architecture of the famous Flager hotels, soft gray stucco walls, fluted across under its red-tiled roof, with deep cool verandahs, commanding views of the surrounding lakes and islands. It has accommodations for 100 guests and is the finest summer hotel in Canada. For all information as to rates, routes, etc., and illustrated descriptive literature, apply to T. T. Bell, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, Grand Trunk Railway System, Montreal, Canada.

Rheumatism

The liniment bottle and flannel strip are familiar objects in nearly every household. They are the weapons that have been used for generations to fight old Rheumatism and are about as effective in the battle with this giant disease as the blunderbuss of our forefathers would be in modern warfare.

Rheumatism is caused by an acid, sour condition of the blood. It is filled with acid, irritating matter that settles in the joints, muscles and nerves, and liniments and oils do nothing else applied externally can dislodge these gritty, corroding particles. They were deposited there by the blood and can be reached only through the blood. Rubbing with liniments sometimes relieve temporarily the aches and pains, but these are only symptoms which are liable to return with every change of the weather; the real disease lies deeper, the blood and system are infected. Rheumatism cannot be radically and permanently cured until the blood has been purified, and no remedy does this so thoroughly and promptly as S. S. S. It neutralizes the acids and sends a stream of rich, strong blood to the affected parts, which dissolves and washes out all foreign materials, and the sufferer obtains happy relief from the torturing pains.

S. S. S. contains no potash or other mineral, but is a perfect vegetable blood purifier and most exhilarating tonic. Our physicians will advise, without charge, all who write about their case, and we will send free our special book on Rheumatism and its treatment.

Brain Food Nonsense.

Another ridiculous food fad has been branded by the most competent authorities. They have dispelled the silly notion that one kind of food is needed for brain, another for muscles, and still another for bones. A correct diet will not only nourish a particular part of the body, but it will sustain every other part. Yet however good your food may be, its nutriment is destroyed by indigestion or dyspepsia. You must prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Green's August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aids digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at W. T. Brooks'. A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure. While tastes and odors cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES THE GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD IN THE HEAD. CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION — "SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once and write full particulars as to your condition and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

Quaint, Queer and Curious Salt Lake City.

The late Col. John Cockerel, in The Cosmopolitan said, "There are three unique cities in America, and one of these is Salt Lake City." It is not only unique in its temple, tabernacle and other Mormon church institutions, but quaint in appearance, with its wide streets, immense blocks and martial rows of shade trees. It has, perhaps more attractions to the square yard than any city in the country, and its climate, while temperate all the year round, is particularly delightful in Summer. The Great Salt Lake, with its magnificent Saltair resort, where the water is "deader and denser" than that in the Dead Sea in Palestine, is an attraction in itself that people come miles to see. There are many cool mountain and lake resorts near by, also numerous very pretty canon and park drives, and hot sulphur springs. Fishing and hunting can be had in every direction. The trip from Denver to Salt Lake City and Ogden, via the Denver & Rio Grande and the Rio Grande Western, is one of unsurpassed pleasure. Here nature is found in her sternest mood and the whole line is a succession of rugged canyons, waterfalls and picturesque valleys. No European trip can compare with it in grandeur of scenery. During the entire Summer there will be low excursion rates to Salt Lake City and contiguous country. It is on the Pacific coast, if that be your destination. Write S. K. Hooper, G. P. & T. A., Denver, Col., for beautifully illustrated pamphlets, etc.
